180 bills still await state action

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The 78th General Assembly shifts into high gear this week, with both the House and Senate in action after an Easter vacation.

And the Senate, which has conducted one session each working day since convening Jan. 8, begins afternoon sessions this week in an effort to cut through the large number of bills which still need to be considered.

With less than half of the session remaining, the Senate has yet to consider more than 180 bills reported to the floor. It has been working on time-consuming controversial measures, such as the death penalty and revision of the state's judicial system.

When it meets later today, the upper chamber will still face the 299-page revision of the state's criminal code. In deliberations so far, the Senate has considered 50 of the bill's pages.

The House, which adjourned for Easter March 26, will consider the Senate's version of an increased unemployment compensation measure which boosts the benefit limit from $67 to $85 and changes the formula to provide increased benefits to lower paid workers.

The House has already passed its own version, setting the limit at $95, and it is expected to amend the Senate's bill to call for increased payments by employers to the unemployment compensation fund.

Also high on the House's agenda is a bill establishing a compensation commission which would determine the salaries of those working in the legislative, executive and judicial branches of government. The commission's recommendation would be subject to rejection on a one-third vote of the two houses.

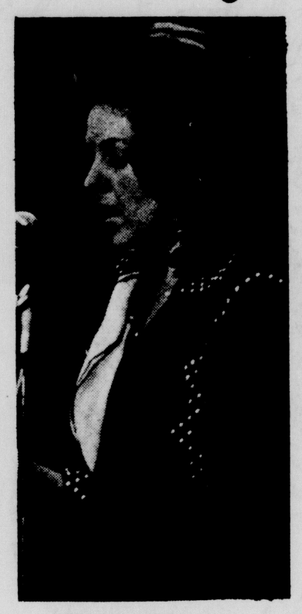

The House also could consider a bill giving collective bargaining but not strike powers to public workers with the exception of Highway Patrol officers, county deputy sheriffs and Missouri National Guardsmen.

The House gave brief consideration to the bargaining bill before its vacation, but it was set aside for later consideration when proponents felt they did not have enough votes for passage.

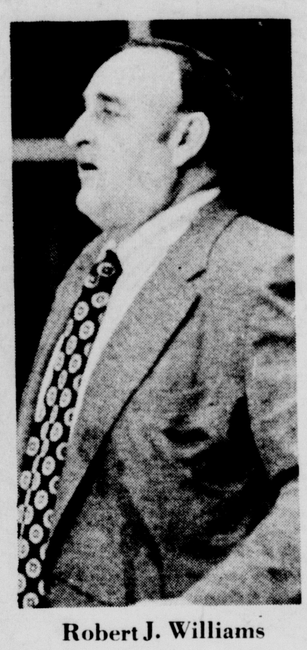

The Senate is expected to consider a bill outlawing corporate farming in the state, another to increase the property tax ceiling which certain school districts can levy, revision of the state's Nurse Practices Act and a pay increase for judges.

Farmers dissatisfied, uncertain, Simon says

"I can't remember when I've seen as much dissatisfaction and uncertainty on the farm as I see today," Rep. Paul Simon, Democrat from Southern Illinois, told 700 people Saturday at Sikeston High School Field House.

Simon was one of 14 speakers at a United Farmer's Organization meeting. The 700 people who attended were far short of the 2,000 to 3,000 hoped for by the sponsors. They made up for their lack of numbers with applause and cheers through the speeches.

Some of those who attended were from as far away as Montana.

All the speakers supported proposed planting cutbacks.

Simon said of the 15 major functions of the federal government, only one, agriculture, has gone down in expenditures. The problems between farmers and urban dwellers come from the lack of understanding of farmers by city dwellers.

Otherproblems are caused by spokesmen who claim to speak for the farmers, but who actually speak for the food processers, he said.

For the first time, he said, consumer and union groups are backing the farm bill, because they realize that the country can't have a strong economy without a strong agricultural economy, Simon added.

In Illinois, Simon said, 40 per cent of the jobs in the state are directly or indirectly related to agriculture. In Missouri he said, the figure is probably much higher.

Simon praised Rep. Bill Burlison, 10th District Democrat, for for his support of the farm bill which has just passed Congress, and said Burlison is the one responsible for getting a loan price on soybeans into the bill.

Burlison was criticized throughout the meeting because statements he made at a Kiwanis Club meeting in Chaffee concerning the UFO plan for reducing planting.

Burlison said while he sympathized with the farmers, the UFO drive wouldn't work and that he felt most farmers would not go along.

Joel Vinson of Sikeston said the reason why Burlison could make that statement is that farmers are unorganized. Labor can put money up for his re-election and he can understand that, Vinson said, but farmers are unorganized and don't have that kind of power.

A field secretary for Burlison said he was saddened by the accounts of Burlisons speech which emphasized the anti-UFO statements. He said Burlison didn't need organizations to elect him.

While he did n ot deny the Congressman has made statements critical of the UFO, he said Burlison supportes any organization which aids the farmer.

Robert Williams, Illinois director of Agriculture, said he will cut back his production of corn by 20 per cent this year.

Like other speakers, he criticized the recent export embargo put on agriculture products.

If anyone says the embargo hasn't hurt the markets overseas, he said, they're lying.

"If we're going to have all-out production, we must have all-out marketing," he said.

John Brennon, a farmer from Montana, said a few years ago he opened a tire business to subsidize his farm, and for a few years it did.

Then in 1973 and 1974, the farm began subsidizing the tire business.

This year, he said, both the tire business and the farm need subsidizing.

Les Mithcell, a farmer from Akron, Iowa, said farmers were the only ones he knew of who were penalized for efficiency. The more farmers produce, he said, the less they earn.

"This country is being sold down the river," he said, "and agriculture is the tool."

Mrs. Marlene Dierken, a woman farmer from Oklahoma, said large grain companies and the USDA are floating false stories of grain surpluses to drive prices down. She said prices in Canada are far higher than in the U.S.

Even hinting about production cutbacks has people in Washington scared, according to Dan Dumey of Painton, president of the Scott County UFO. Washington needs cheap food, for their give away programs, he said.

Dumey said if oil prices start to drop, the shieks turn off the spigot. Farmers can do the same, he said.

"I challenge you to put up or shut up," he said. "If you eat the words cheap food, you'll be eating them for many years."

Shelling hits near Saigon; baby lift ends

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — Communist-led forces shelled at least 10 district capitals in the rice-rich Mekong Delta today and also hit the area near South Vietnam's largest fuel depot six miles southeast of Saigon.

Operation Baby Lift, a massive international evacuation of children, ended on a large-scale basis with the last of about 1,700 Vietnamese orphans flying to new homes abroad. Two U.S. Air Force planes headed toward the United States carrying more than 200 children.

Officials said the airlift had reached the scheduled quota approved earlier by the Saigon government. "The large operation has ended," one South Vietnamese official said. "From now on the orphans will leave in smaller groups."

The Viet Cong assailed the airlift, accusing the U.S. and Saigon governments of "stealing and killing thousands of our children."

The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong engaged government troops in five provinces of the delta, and launched rocket and mortar attacks that wounded about 50 civilians, field reports said.

Sources said 95 Communist-led troops and 14 government soldiers were killed in the fighting. Most of the shelling in the delta, where one-third of South Vietnam's 20 million people live - was centered in Dinh Tuong province about 35 miles south of Saigon.

The delta has been relatively quiet during the five-week-old Communist-led offensive during which the Saigon government gave up the northern three-quarters of they, most of it without a fight. The Viet Cong said their conquest "opens a new opportunity...to march forward for more brilliant victories."

Field reports said the Communist-led forces also shelled a big South Vietnamese air base near Can Tho, 80 miles south of Saigon, and made repeated attacks on Minh Duc, a district capital 29 miles north of Can Tho.

Forty-five miles northwest of Saigon, government troops recaptured a vital outpost on the southern flanks of Tay Ninh City, the Saigon command said. The outpost had fallen March 17.

Closer to Saigon, Viet Cong gunners poured 60 mortar and recoilless rifle rounds into the vicinity of the Nha Be fuel depot, the military command said. It said six persons were wounded and damage to the fuel depot was minor.

Nha Be has been shelled repeatedly for the past two years, but this was the first time it had been a target during the current offensive.

Hearnes sets news meeting

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Former Gov. Warren Hearnes, amid reports that he may balk at testifying before a U.S. grand jury in Kansas City, was scheduled to hold a news conference this afternoon.

Hearnes was expected to discuss the grand jury investigation of possible corruption while he was governor of Missouri and his plans, if any, about testifying. The news conference was set for 1:30 p.m.

Hearnes was slated to testify before the grand jyry as a voluntary witness three weeks ago, but was ordered hospitalized for exhaustion and a virus prior to the appearance.

Until recently, the former governor had demanded that he be called to testify, but advisors, concerned with developments in the probe, reportedly are now urging him to take the Fifth Amendment and refuse to testify.

The grand jury is investigating possible misuse of funds during Hearnes' 1968 re-election campaign for governor and possible income tax fraud while he was in office.

Deadline for indictment in connection with the re-election campaign is April 15. After that, the statute of limitations expires.

Sikeston man held

Robert Clem Hill, 108 Luther, has been arrested for the alleged rape of a 16-year-old girl on Saturday.

The rape allegedly occurred at his home.

Police said they arrested a man named Donald Gene Duck of Malden Route Two, Friday night for speeding. A check of motor vehicle registrations showed the man was not kidding about his name, police said.

Other arrests include: Solomon Ferguson, 226 Felker, driving on a revoked license, failure to register vehicle, and no city sticker; James T. Taylor, 924 Tanner, careless and imprudent driving; Norma L. Thompson, 429 Thrower, Dexter, speeding.

David Eugene Rayburn, 119 Handy, careless and imprudent driving; Kenneth Ray Moore, 135 Ruben Warrant from Mississippi County for stealing under $50; T.L. Coatney, Morehouse, driving on a revoked license, possessing a gun while intoxicated, and driving while intoxicated.

Bruce Allen Kesey, 605 Helena, Charleston, careless and imprudent driving; Larry James Marshall, 138 Ruben St., careless and imprudent driving; Harold Pace, Poplar Bluff, assault and battery, Jack Darnell Nelson, 1402 Sunset, assault and battery.

Mary Redmon, 839 W. Malone Ave., peace disturbance; Edward Redmon, 839 W. Malone Ave., peace disturbance and assault and battery; Ira Spencer, 213 Young, assault and battery; Willie J. Wilson, 203 Felker, assault and battery; John L. Chiles, 506 W. Gladys, rear, trespassing.

6 persons injured in weekend traffic

Six persons received injuries in four separate accidents in the Southeast Missouri area over the weekend, according to the highway patrol.

Two one-car accidents on Sunday injured three persons in Ripley and Madison counties.

At 12:25 p.m. on Highway 67, six miles north of Fredericktown, Thelma McNece, 68, of St. Louis, lost control of her northbound car, which ran off the road and overturned.

The driver was injured seriously and taken to Madison County Hospital in Fredericktown.

On Route V, 16 miles west of Doniphan, at 1:30 a.m. two Doniphan men received minor injuries. John Henry Flynn, 19, lost control of his car while traveling north at a high rate of speed and ran off the road and overturned. A passenger, Mart Van Dunlap Jr., 19, and Flynn were taken to Ripley County Hospital in Doniphan.

On Saturday at 10:40 p.m. west of Poplar Bluff on Route M four and a half miles west of Highway 67 a two-car accident injured two Poplar Bluff people.

An eastbound car driven by Donnie K. Malone, 20, of Poplar Bluff, attempted to make a left turn into a private drive and drove into the path of a westbound car driven by Tommy Lloyd Sample, 31, of Poplar Bluff. The Sample car struck the Malone car broadside, injuring two passengers in the Sample vehicle. Eldna Sample, 30, and Jamie Sample, 4, were taken to Doctors Hospital in Poplar Bluff for treatment of minor injuries.

In Puxico at 10:45 p.m. Saturday two Advance residents were involved in an accident on a city street.

Jessie Eugene Mangrum, 19, was reportedly traveling south at an excessive rate of speed and failed to stop for a stop sign and was struck by a westbound car driven by Janet Elaine Cookson, 20, as she was attempting to make a right hand turn. Miss Cookson was treated for minor injuries at Doctors Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

Shoe factory to close

The International Shoe Co. plant in Sikeston will be closed permanently on April 30, according to a spokesman for Interco Inc. of St. Louis, which owns International Shoe Co.

No reason was given for the closure and company officials were not available for comment.

The plant has been in Sikeston for over 50 years and employs about 450 people.

Mayor to be chosen

Swearing in ceremonies for new city council members and selection of a new mayor will be at 7 p.m. today in the City Administrative Building.

Business to be conducted by the new council will include consideration of an city obscenity ordinance, an urban aid program and a trespassing ordinance.

2 area roads remain closed

Two area highways were closed over the weekend and river stages were down with crests already reached from heavy rains March 29 and 30.

Highway 80 from Interstate 55 to East Prairie was closed due to high water and road conditions. Highway 51 south of Cairo, Ill., to Wickliffe, Ky., remained closed and will not reopen until the river stage at Cairo is 54.0 feet or lower. The weather service is predicting 53.9 feet Tuesday and said the highway will probably be clear of water by Wednesday.

The heavy snowstorm in the northern states will begin to effect the Mississippi River stage with the critical period being the last week in April and first week of May. The snowfall was equivalent to 4 to 5 inches of rain and will not cause too serious of a problem if the snow melts slowly.

Man of Year named at Jaycee banquet

Charles Blumenberg was named Sikeston Jaycee Man of the Year Saturday night at the annual installation and awards banquet of the Sikeston Jaycees at Sikeston Country Club.

The Man of the Year award is the highest honor presented by the local chapter and is given in recognition of outstanding service to the club that year.

The Outstanding First Year Jaycee Award was presented to Jackson Clay Hunter, who also received the Spoke Award. The outstanding Spark Plug award went to Steve Taylor and the top Speak Up award was presented to Scott Matthews. The Spoke and Spark Plug awards are earned by Jaycees throughout the year on a point system for various activities within the club. The top award in each category are presented to the Jaycee with the most points. The Speak Up Awards are also earned by meeting certain requirements.

Recipients of rodeo awards were Blumenberg, Dirty Boots Award, and Dennis Ziegenhorn, Shiney Boots Award.

Allen Blanton and Bill Lewis were honored as Exhausted Roosters for the past year. This honor is bestowed on the Jaycee or Jaycees who are the most active upon reaching the top age limit of the organization.

Steve Sikes, outgoing president, was presented a plaque in honor of his leadership during the past year. Linda Sloan, immediate past president of the Jaycee Wives, also received a gift for her services.

New Jaycee officers installed were Steve Taylor, president; George Gilmore, first vice president; Ed Aldrich, second vice president; David Boyer, secretary; Ned Matthews, treasurer; and David Byrd, Bill Wellborn, Jackson Clay Hunter and Clayton Vandivort, state directors.

Highway 51 south of Cairo, Ill., to Wickliffe, Ky., remained closed and will not reopen until the river stage at Cairo is 54.0 feet or lower. The weather service is predicting 53.9 feet Tuesday and said the highway will probably be clear of water by Wednesday.

The heavy snowstorm in the northern states will begin to effect the Mississippi River stage with the critical period being the last week in April and first week of May. The snowfall was equivalent to 4 to 5 inches of rain and will not cause too serious of a problem if the snow melts slowly.

Mayor to be chosen

Swearing in ceremonies for new city council members and selection of a new mayor will be at 7 p.m. today in the City Administrative Building.

Business to be conducted by the new council will include consideration of an city obscenity ordinance, an urban aid program and a trespassing ordinance.

INDIA VS. INDIA

India is riding a "Bombay High" and it has nothing to do with drugs.

Encouraging reports from exploratory drilling in the region known as the Bombay High led the minister of petroleum and chemicals, K. D. Malaviya, to predict last month that India could become nearly self-sufficient in years.

The prospect holds stupendous implications for India, which has been hard hit by the quadrupling of world oil prices. Self- sufficiency in oil could not only help solve the nation's balance of payments problem but provide it with the raw material for fertilizer, which it desperately needs if it is to be able to feed its continually expanding population.

If India's past record is a guide, unfortunately, it will find some way of remaining in poverty.

This is suggested by remarks made by Daniel P. Moynihan, recently returned after two years as U.S. ambassador to India.

When India won its independence from Britain in 1947, he points out, it was producing 1.2 million tons of steel a year. Japan was producing only 800,000 tons.

Twenty-five years later, India's output had risen to 6.8 million tons but Japan's had soared to 106.8 million tons, despite the fact that Japan has to import iron ore and coal while India has huge deposits of both.

"This isn't a question of luck," says Moynihan, "and it isn't because the Japanese are any smarter or harder working than the Indians. It's simply the result of a conscious decision made by both countries."

The decision made by India was to put steel production, along with most of its economy, under direct government control.

India, says Moynihan, prefers stability or stagnation to a dynamic economy. In protecting itself from recessions, however, it has also protected itself from growth.

It is less than encouraging to learn that India has already informed the oil companies prospecting in its territory that it intends to take them over.

BUSINESS GIVES $86 MILLION TO COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES

Business corporations have significantly stepped up their support of public colleges and universities, and in 1972-73 for the first time gave more money to public institutions than to major private universities, according to a report just released by Brakeley, John Price Jones Inc.

The report, Voluntary Support of Public Higher Edcation, is issued biennially by the New York-based fundraising counseling organization. The new edition analyzes gifts receivedby 283 pubilc colleges and universities from corporations, foundations, private individuals, and community organizations.

Altogether, the 283 public institutions attracted $402.1 millin in gifts and grants from private sources during 1972-73, the latest year for which complete figures are available and the year covered by the new report.

Of this amount, corporation and business support accounted for $66.2 million, or 21.4 percent. This was an increase of 26.4 percent from 1970-71. In 1972-73, corporations contributed $83.4 million to 65 major private universities — $2.8 million less than their contributions to the larger group of public institutins.

The business community is the second larges t source of private support to public higher education, according to the report. The largest source of private support to public higher education, according to the report. The largest source of support is general philanthropic foundations, which accounted for $99.96 million or 24.9 percent of the public higher edudation voluntary support total in 1972-73.

Business contributions rose not only in dollars but also as a share of all contributions to public higher education, according to the new study. In 1970-71, business contributions accounted for 20.7 percent of private support to public colleges and universities.

Business contributions rose faster than all contrivbutions as a whole, which went up 22.3 percent.

The University of Michigan received the largest amount of corporate support, a total of over $7 million It was followed by the University of California system and the University of Wisconsin.

BUILDERS PLAN FOR FUTURE

Knowing that shelter is one of the necessities of life, leaders of the housing industry have been marking time and experimenting with new concepts while awaiting the end of the current home building slump.

Exchange, a publication of the New York Stock Exchange, said in an article on housing that most analysts of the industry believe the slump is due more to the tight money policies of the Federal Reserve Board and high interest rates than to the more usual causes of such slowdowns, such as housing prices, family income and shifts in marriage and population trends.

But homebuilders know their industry is cyclical, the article said, so a number of the nation's major builders are simply tightening operations, eliminating overlapping functions, reducing promotion, an testing ideas for housing of the future.

"The steeper the downturn in housing starts ... the more likely it is that the huge pentup demand for housing in this country will push starts up to boom levels," said homebuilder Eugene S. Rosenfeld, president, Kaufman and Broad, Inc., as quoted in the article.

The new ideas being tested for future use involve a vacation home that offers a 360-degree view, specially constructed homes that would use minimal amounts of energy, new concepts in modular and mobile home designs, and the marketing possibilities for selling condominiums and vacation homes on a time-occupancy basis, an arrangement in which the purchaser buys ownership for a specific time period, such as one month each year.

COMPETING FOR CAPITAL

Who cares whether the telephone company lives or dies? The answer to that should be -- just about everyone. The fact that the telephone has become so much a part of life in the United Sttes that hardly anyone ever thinks about it attests to the high quality of service to which we are accustomed and to the significant role that telecommunications play in binding together the fabric of our civilization.

An industry advertisement has noted quite correctly that, "Few businesses are tied as closely to the community and its future as the telephone company." For example, if a town is to grow and provide opportunities for young people and new residents, it must have expanding business enterprise to provide new jobs for a growing population. Unless these new businesses and households are to be without phone service, the telephone company has to grow continueally to meet its legal obligations to provide service. It takes around a billion dollars a month of new investment to build and install the plant and equipment required to meet the growing demand for telephone service, and these dollars must be attractedfrom the investing public, which is constantly comparing the opportunities of investment in one company or industry with another.

A utility industry publication points out that -- unlike utilities -- industrial corporations are not required to invest in new facilities to meet the increased demand of their customers. They increase their capacity only "... when there is the expectation that the investment will be reasonably profitable." But utilities have no such option -- they have to build to meety demand for service. As the industry publication concludes, the problem is that, "If utility companies are to compete successfully in the securities market, they must also show that their new investment in plant and facilities is being made on a profitable basis. It is up to the regulators to make this possible."

General public opinion ultimately determines what regulatory authorities can do. Many utility companies are requesting rate increases to meet the increased costs of providing essential services. These increases, if granted, will be among the smallest items in the family budget and would enable these vital industries to attract the investment dollars required.

CAUGHT WITH OUR HYPERBOLE DOWN

As long as we seem to be dreaming up new ways to enlarge the scope of government, we might very well consider establishing something called the Bureauof Hyperbole Management.

A hyperbole (with accent on the second syllable is, according to Webster, "extravagant exaggeration by which something is represented as much greater or less, better or worse, or as involving a greater intensity, than in reality, or beyond possibility ... a statement exaggerated fancifully through excitement, or for effect."

It might be added that these days it is often an exaggeration the true facts about whic hseldom catch up with its effect upon the public.

A prime example is the allegation enshrined in a report last year by the Senate's Select Committee on Human Nutrition and Needs that a third of the poor people in America had been reduced to eating pet foods.

Where the claim originally came from and what evidence it was based on is not quite clear. Suffice to say that many people have accepted it as gospel.

Yet neither the Food and Drug Administration nor the Pet Food Institute has been able to verify that any poor people, let alone many, are resorting to pet food diets.

So asserts Dr. Robert H. Wilbur of the institute, writing in a recent issue of the Journal of the American Medical Assn. Rather than people being driven to buy pet foods because they can't afford other foods, he says, sales of canned dog food have actually fallen over the past year. (Maybe they're eating cat food.)

A similarly sensational horror story was contained in a news release sent out in December by the Consumer Preduct Safety Commission. Of some 5.5 million household and property fires occurring in one year, it said, 196,000 of them were caused by defective television sets.

"Highly exaggerated and misleading," cries the Electronics Industries Assn., after investigating the claim.

They would seem to have a case. The commission' s finding was based on data from a survey of 33,000 homes sponsored by it and the National Bureau ofStandards. The total of 196,000 defective television sets was extrapolated from 89 "fire incidents" reported by householders — 89 out of 33,000 — in which a television set was claimed to be the ignition source.

At least 61 of these 89 incidents involved reports only that the TV receiver smoked. None of the 89 incidents was claimed to have caused any injury to any person or any damage to anything except the receiver itself.

It is inherent with high-voltage components, says the Electronics Industries Assn., that they may produce smoke or crackling or arcing or other symptoms if they fail, which may be mistaken as evidence of an internal "fire."

Such failures are by no means fires or ignition sources but merely the built-in fail-safe performance of certain parts, alerting the owner that replacement and servicing are necesaary.

The highest previous figure of TV-related fires claimed by the safety commission was 10,000 yearly, a figure the television makers say was also arrived at by dubious methods. But even double it, triple it or quadruple it and it is still a long way from 196,000.

Unfortunately, millions of Americans who read the headlines were convinced that not only are television sets highly dangerous things to have around but that it was one more proof that American industry is committed to making a buck at any cost.

And this is the most dangerous hyperbole of all.

What Really Happens Inside: Attempt Now To Stave Off '76 Boom-Killing Strike Wave

WASHINGTON--Happy talk has been as scarce as a silent whooping crane. So, swiftly I report that the highest Tresury Department officials now believe this nation will be in one of the " biggest booms" in history in mid-'76. And they talk of prosperity not politics.

However, that boom could be lowered catastrophically by a strike wave, which could soggy-up the bicentennial year, turning celebration into chaos.

Note, first, that '76 is the year of the big ones, the expiration of labor contracts covering such powerful forces as the teamsters, the auto union, construction trades, meat packers and rubber and electrical workers, to mention just a few. If one or another of these labor outfits strike they could cripple transportation, or idle a million workers or trigger a chain reaction which could disemploy millions more.

True, this would be temporary. But the impact wouldn't. This nation could easily be hurled back into our current neurotic ecnomic condition.

So two imaginative government officials have decided to do somethng about all this-- a full year in advance! One is the new (Professor-Doctor) Secretary of Labor, John Dunlop, who has said that when he wants theories he returns to Harvard. When he wants action he flies to Washington. The other official is the up-from-the-ranks Federal Mediation director Bill Usery, whose Georgia drawl is being polluted by all that smoke-filled-room and confidential conciliation life he leads.

This is a tricky business--meaning scientific. Collective bargaining is a mystery to the multitude. Not until the headlines scream that the nation's railroad system may be shut down the next day--as they might, for example, at 12:01 a.m., April 18 (1975), by a railway clerks strike--do the people arouse themselves. But leading to the actual strike deadlines there is tough, hard, loud, sometimes lewd bargaining on which depend the bread and profits of massive industries and their employes.

Well, Dunlop and Usery took a long look at 1976. They noted that two industried has settled with their unions back in 1973 for moderate wage increases. That was before the Middle East turned off its oil spigots. And before the recession. One is the rubber industry, the other the electrical manufacturing field (household appliances, generators, etc.).

No doubt the unions involved, the United Rubber Workers and the International Union of Electrical Workers (IUE) and the United Electrical Workers (UE) woud want to "catch up" when their current three-year contracts expire next April and June respectively.

But how much catch-up?

This year's (1975) average wage increase may well run to 10 and 12 per cent. How much would the rubber and electrical unions want to top that? And to catch up with the inflation of the 1974-75 period?

Knowing union leaders, it would be a big "much." And will they strike for a huge catch-up? These are questions as crucial to America's welfare as bread and family.

Here is what the public doesn't see--or appear to understand. If the rubber and electrical unions hit hard or strike they could trigger chain reactions in the big unions throughout 1976.

Rubber and electrical labor contracts actually are amongst the earliest of the significant agreements expiring next year. The rubber industry contract is up in April. Just about the same time as the Teamsters' national freight hauling pact is up. Thus if "rubber" struck for a big inflationary package or won one without a stoppage, why wouldn't the 400,000 over-the-road drivers? And what of the thousands of construction worker contracts expiring just about then with more pacts opening in May? It's possible not even the skillfully directed new Construction Collective Bargaining Committee would be able to contain the hard hats. And then what of the auto negotiations in September? And the meat packers' field in which a stoppage could skyrocket foodstuff prices?

So, some months ago, Dunlop and Usery arranged for conferences with the forces in rubber. Usery brought the executives of the big five rubber corporations face to face with rubber union leader Pete Bommarito and some of his colleagues. It wasn't hard to take in Bal Harbour, Fla., last February during labor's high command conclaves.

They just talked. The idea was to get the men together, get them to know each other during relaxed hours. And to understand, as in international diplomacy, what the executives and the labor leaders can yield without being dumped by their constituencies.

There will be other meetings. Point is to keep them low-profile, for it's a full year in advance of cliff-hanger time.

Bill Usery, meanwhile, has been talking privately with the electrical industry people. Just talking. Just feeling his way. Just trying to avoid a precedent-setting explosion of inflationary "catch-up" in 1976. Just trying to find a way out.

It won't be easy. Few realize that 1975 itself is proving a tough labor year. Some 19,000 Machinists have been strking McDonnell Douglas in three states--and their strike relief has expired. There has been a series of coal-miner walkouts in the West. New York state actually is threatened by a civil service strike which could paralyze it. Municipal employes are restless in a hundred cities. It all could blow. But if there is restraint, if the rank and file doesn't go strike happy, the boom won't be lowered in '76 and viva the bicentennial.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: CIA's Plots to Kill Papa Doc
By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON--A sworn deposition describes two unsuccessful assassination attempts against the late Haitian strongman, Francois, "Papa Doc" Duvalier, in the late 1960s.

The deposition, given by Dr. Robert Pritchard to the special commission headed by Vice President Nelson Rockefeller, alleges that the CIA first plotted to poison Duvalier in 1966.

When this failed, according to the deposition, the CIA tried to bomb the presidential palace in 1968. A lone B-25 bomber allegedly madetwo runs over the palace, dropping bombs and leaflets. But the bombs exploded harmlessly on the street outside.

Dr. Pritchard is a prominent American concert pianist, who had become a confident of the Haitian dictator. But in 1966, Dr. Pritchard defied an order from Papa Doc and gave a forbidden public concert in Haiti.

This caused the pianist's fall from favor, which the CIA allegedly sought to exploit. As Dr. Pritchard has related it to the Rockefeller commission, the CIA first tried to recruit him to spy on Papa Doc and his palace advisers.

Subsequently, a CIA-paid agent posing as a photographer approached Dr. Pritchard about slipping a deadly poison into the dictator's food, the deposition alleges. The pianist relates that he saw the lethal poison immediately paralyze a small, mouse-like creature, which the agent carried in a cage.

Dr. Pritchard states that he not only refused to cooperate with the agent but reported the plot to a U.S. political officer in Haito, According to Dr. Pritchard's testimony, the officer responded: "Wouldn't anything be better than this situation?" The pianist said he told Papa Doc about the assassination plot and that the dictator was aware of the scheming against his life. Dr. Pritchard also tried again to notify the State Department of what the CIA was doing, according to the deposition.

Nevertheless, the CIA approached him again and tried unsuccessfully to bring pressure on him to work against Papa Doc. Dr. Pritchard alleges that in May, 1968, he learned about the bombing attack upon the presidential palace. He was told by Arthur Bonhomme, then the Haitian ambassador to Washington, that the atack had been carried out by the CIA.

Footnote: In early 1971, we described six CIA assassination attempts against Cuban dictator Fidel Castro. We reported names and details. The first attempt, interestingly, was a plot to slip poison pellets in Castor's food.

THIU'S DEBACLE: In an earlier report, we cited secret military cables, which placed much of the blame for the South Vietnamese military debacle upon President Nguyen Van Thiu.

He issued conflicting orders which confused his commandrs, according to one cable. He kept changing his mind, for example, whether to order a defense of Da Nang and Hue. In the end, these cities were lost without a battle.

A subsequent cable reports that the U.S. Army chief, Gen. Frederick Weyend, now on a fact-finding mission in South Vietnam, had appointments last week to see Thieu, The South Vietnamese president canceled the meetings literally at the last minute.

Apparently, Thieu didn't have the answers to Weyand's questions and didn't want to face him. The cables report that Weyand, meanwhile, was shocked over the South Vietnamese Army's pell-mell retreat. The North Vietnamese forces advanced southward so rapidly that our own intelligence analysts occasionally lost track of them.

The speculation is that the Communists staged forced night marchers to take advantage of the chaotic South Vietnamese retreat.

The intelligence reportswarns that within days Hanoi's forces will have the capital city of Saigan under seige. American analysts have all but given up hope--because of the demoralization and disorganization of the South Vietnamese army--that Saigon can be successfully defended.

STRANGE ARREST: The story has been hushed up of a strnge arrest in Athens. On Feb. 28, the Greek military authorities arrested Dennis Bassen, an American citizen employed by the multi-million-dollar Bendix Field Engineering Corporation.

This is the same firm that has been recruiting military specialists, putting them in civilian clothes and sending them to Saudi Arabia as advisers.

According to the Greek version, Bassen "was taking photos of military installations." His superiors describe him as a senior field engineer with an "impeccable record." He has been in Greece for several months, they say, working on the installation of a microwave station.

A source in the Greek embassy told us only that the Bassen case is "very strange."

EXTRA ENGINES: Several airlines have been saving transportation costs by flying spare engines on scheduled commercial flights. The extra engine simply is attached under one wing of the plane. Passengers have been alarmed over the lopsided dead weight caused by the extra load. They have expessed concern about potential safety hazards.

The Federal Aviation Administration has assured our office, however, that this practice is routine procedure and completely safe.

"Insanity?" exlaimed the judge.

"Yes, sir," said the defendant, "I'm crazy about it."

BUSINESS GIVES $86 MILLION TO COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES

Business corporations have significantly stepped up their support of public colleges and universities, and in 1972-73 for the first time gave more money to public institutions than to major private universities, according to a report just released by Brakeley, John Price Jones Inc.

The report, Voluntary Support of Public Higher Edcation, is issued biennially by the New York-based fundraising counseling organization. The new edition analyzes gifts receivedby 283 pubilc colleges and universities from corporations, foundations, private individuals, and community organizations.

Altogether, the 283 public institutions attracted $402.1 millin in gifts and grants from private sources during 1972-73, the latest year for which complete figures are available and the year covered by the new report.

Of this amount, corporation and business support accounted for $66.2 million, or 21.4 percent. This was an increase of 26.4 percent from 1970-71. In 1972-73, corporations contributed $83.4 million to 65 major private universities — $2.8 million less than their contributions to the larger group of public institutins.

The business community is the second larges t source of private support to public higher education, according to the report. The largest source of private support to public higher education, according to the report. The largest source of support is general philanthropic foundations, which accounted for $99.96 million or 24.9 percent of the public higher edudation voluntary support total in 1972-73.

Business contributions rose not only in dollars but also as a share of all contributions to public higher education, according to the new studv. In 1970-71, business contributions accounted for 20.7 percent of private support to public colleges and universities.

Business contributions rose faster than all contrivbutions as a whole, which went up 22.3 percent.

The University of Michigan received the largest amount of corporate support, a total of over $7 million It was followed by the University of California system and the University of Wisconsin.

BUILDERS PLAN FOR FUTURE

Knowing that shelter is one of the necessities of life, leaders of the housing industry have been marking time and experimenting with new concepts while awaiting the end of the current home building slump.

Exchange, a publication of the New York Stock Exchange, said in an article on housing that most analysts of the industry believe the slump is due more to the tight money policies of the Federal Reserve Board and high interest rates than to the more usual causes of such slowdowns, such as housing prices, family income and shifts in marriage and population trends.

But homebuilders know their industry is cyclical, the article said, so a number of the nation's major builders are simply tightening operations, eliminating overlapping functions, reducing promotion, an testing ideas for housing of the future.

"The steeper the downturn in housing starts ... the more likely it is that the huge pentup demand for housing in this country will push starts up to boom levels," said homebuilder Eugene S. Rosenfeld, president, Kaufman and Broad, Inc., as quoted in the article.

The new ideas being tested for future use involve a vacation home that offers a 360-degree view, specially constructed homes that would use minimal amounts of energy, new concepts in modular and mobile home designs, and the marketing possibilities for selling condominiums and vacation homes on a time-occupancy basis, an arrangement in which the purchaser buys ownership for a specific time period, such as one month each year.

COMPETING FOR CAPITAL

Who cares whether the telephone company lives or dies? The answer to that should be -- just about everyone. The fact that the telephone has become so much a part of life in the United Sttes that hardly anyone ever thinks about it attests to the high quality of service to which we are accustomed and to the significant role that telecommunications play in binding together the fabric of our civilization.

An industry advertisement has noted quite correctly that, "Few businesses are tied as closely to the community and its future as the telephone company." For example, if a town is to grow and provide opportunities for young people and new residents, it must have expanding business enterprise to provide new jobs for a growing population. Unless these new businesses and households are to be without phone service, the telephone company has to grow continueally to meet its legal obligations to provide service. It takes around a billion dollars a month of new investment to build and install the plant and equipment required to meet the growing demand for telephone service, and these dollars must be attractedfrom the investing public, which is constantly comparing the opportunities of investment in one company or industry with another.

A utility industry publication points out that -- unlike utilities -- industrial corporations are not required to invest in new facilities to meet the increased demand of their customers. They increase their capacity only "... when there is the expectation that the investment will be reasonably profitable." But utilities have no such option -- they have to build to meety demand for service. As the industry publication concludes, the problem is that, "If utility companies are to compete successfully in the securities market, they must also show that their new investment in plant and facilities is being made on a profitable basis. It is up to the regulators to make this possible."

General public opinion ultimately determines what regulatory authorities can do. Many utility companies are requesting rate increases to meet the increased costs of providing essential services. These increases, if granted, will be among the smallest items in the family budget and would enable these vital industries to attract the investment dollars required.

CAUGHT WITH OUR HYPERBOLE DOWN

As long as we seem to be dreaming up new ways to enlarge the scope of government, we might very well consider establishing something called the Bureauof Hyperbole Management.

A hyperbole (with accent on the second syllable is, according to Webster, "extravagant exaggeration by which something is represented as much greater or less, better or worse, or as involving a greater intensity, than in reality, or beyond possibility ... a statement exaggerated fancifully through excitement, or for effect."

It might be added that these days it is often an exaggeration the true facts about whic hseldom catch up with its effect upon the public.

A prime example is the allegation enshrined in a report last year by the Senate's Select Committee on Human Nutrition and Needs that a third of the poor people in America had been reduced to eating pet foods.

Where the claim originally came from and what evidence it was based on is not quite clear. Suffice to say that many people have accepted it as gospel.

Yet neither the Food and Drug Administration nor the Pet Food Institute has been able to verify that any poor people, let alone many, are resorting to pet food diets.

So asserts Dr. Robert H. Wilbur of the institute, writing in a recent issue of the Journal of the American Medical Assn. Rather than people being driven to buy pet foods because they can't afford other foods, he says, sales of canned dog food have actually fallen over the past year. (Maybe they're eating cat food.)

A similarly sensational horror story was contained in a news release sent out in December by the Consumer Preduct Safety Commission. Of some 5.5 million household and property fires occurring in one year, it said, 196,000 of them were caused by defective television sets.

"Highly exaggerated and misleading," cries the Electronics Industries Assn., after investigating the claim.

They would seem to have a case. The commission' s finding was based on data from a survey of 33,000 homes sponsored by it and the National Bureau ofStandards. The total of 196,000 defective television sets was extrapolated from 89 "fire incidents" reported by householders — 89 out of 33,000 — in which a television set was claimed to be the ignition source.

At least 61 of these 89 incidents involved reports only that the TV receiver smoked. None of the 89 incidents was claimed to have caused any injury to any person or any damage to anything except the receiver itself.

It is inherent with high-voltage components, says the Electronics Industries Assn., that they may produce smoke or crackling or arcing or other symptoms if they fail, which may be mistaken as evidence of an internal "fire."

Such failures are by no means fires or ignition sources but merely the built-in fail-safe performance of certain parts, alerting the owner that replacement and servicing are necesaary.

The highest previous figure of TV-related fires claimed by the safety commission was 10,000 yearly, a figure the television makers say was also arrived at by dubious methods. But even double it, triple it or quadruple it and it is still a long way from 196,000.

Unfortunately, millions of Americans who read the headlines were convinced that not only are television sets highly dangerous things to have around but that it was one more proof that American industry is committed to making a buck at any cost.

And this is the most dangerous hyperbole of all.

What Really Happens Inside: Attempt Now To Stave Off '76 Boom-Killing Strike Wave

WASHINGTON--Happy talk has been as scarce as a silent whooping crane. So, swiftly I report that the highest Tresury Department officials' now believe this nation will be in one of the " biggest booms" in history in mid-'76. And they talk of prosperity not politics.

However, that boom could be lowered catastrophically by a strike wave, which could soggy-up the bicentennial year, turning celebration into chaos.

Note, first, that '76 is the year of the big ones, the expiration of labor contracts covering such powerful forces as the teamsters, the auto union, construction trades, meat packers and rubber and electrical workers, to mention just a few. If one or another of these labor outfits strike they could cripple transportation, or idle a million workers or trigger a chain reaction which could disemploy millions more.

True, this would be temporary. But the impact wouldn't. This nation could easily be hurled back into our current neurotic ecnomic condition.

So two imaginative government officials have decided to do somethng about all this-- a full year in advance! One is the new (Professor-Doctor) Secretary of Labor, John Dunlop, who has said that when he wants theories he returns to Harvard. When he wants action he flies to Washington. The other official is the up-from-the-ranks Federal Mediation director Bill Usery, whose Georgia drawl is being polluted by all that smoke-filled-room and confidential conciliation life he leads.

This is a tricky business-meaning scientific. Collective bargaining is a mystery to the multitude. Not until the headlines scream that the nation's railroad system may be shut down the next day--as they might, for example, at 12:01 a.m., April 18 (1975), by a railway clerks strike--do the people arouse themselves. But leading to the actual strike deadlines there is tough, hard, loud, sometimes lewd bargaining on which depend the bread and profits of massive industries and their employes.

Well, Dunlop and Usery took a long look at 1976. They noted that two industried has settled with their unions back in 1973 for moderate wage increases. That was before the Middle East turned off its oil spigots. And before the recession. One is the rubber industry, the other the electrical manufacturing field (household appliances, generators, etc.).

No doubt the unions involved, the United Rubber Workers and the International Union of Electrical Workers (IUE) and the United Electrical Workers (UE) woud want to "catch up" when their current three-year contracts expire next April and June respectively.

But how much catch-up?

This year's (1975) average wage increase may well run to 10 and 12 per cent. How much would the rubber and electrical unions want to top that? And to catch up with the inflation of the 1974-75 period?

Knowing union leaders, it would be a big "much." And will they strike for a huge catch-up? These are questions as crucial to America's welfare as bread and family.

Here is what the public doesn't see--or appear to understand. If the rubber and electrical unions hit hard or strike they could trigger chain reactions in the big unions throughout 1976.

Rubber and electrical labor contracts actually are amongst the earliest of the significant agreements expiring next year. The rubber industry contract is up in April. Just about the same time as the Teamsters' national freight hauling pact is up. Thus if "rubber" struck for a big inflationary package or won one without a stoppage, why wouldn't the 400,000 over-the-road drivers? And what of the thousands of construction worker contracts expiring just about then with more pacts opening in May? It's possible not even the skillfully directed new Construction Collective Bargaining Committee would be able to contain the hard hats. And then what of the auto negotiations in September? And the meat packers' field in which a stoppage could skyrocket foodstuff prices?

So, some months ago, Dunlop and Usery arranged for conferences with the forces in rubber. Usery brought the executives of the big five rubber corporations face to face with rubber union leader Pete Bommarito and some of his colleagues. It wasn't hard to take in Bal Harbour, Fla., last February during labor's high command conclaves.

They just talked. The idea was to get the men together, get them to know each other during relaxed hours. And to understand, as in international diplomacy, what the executives and the labor leaders can yield without being dumped by their constituencies.

There will be other meetings. Point is to keep them low-profile, for it's a full year in advance of cliff-hanger time.

Bill Usery, meanwhile, has been talking privately with the electrical industry people. Just talking. Just feeling his way. Just trying to avoid a precedent-setting explosion of inflationary "catch-up" in 1976. Just trying to find a way out.

It won't be easy. Few realize that 1975 itself is proving a tough labor year. Some 19,000 Machinists have been strking McDonnell Douglas in three states--and their strike relief has expired. There has been a series of coal-miner walkouts in the West. New York state actually is threatened by a civil service strike which could paralyze it. Municipal employes are restless in a hundred cities. It all could blow. But if there is restraint, if the rank and file doesn't go strike happy, the boom won't be lowered in '76 and viva the bicentennial.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: CIA's Plots to Kill Papa Doc
By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON--A sworn deposition describes two unsuccessful assassination attempts against the late Haitian strongman, Francois, "Papa Doc" Duvalier, in the late 1960s.

The deposition, given by Dr. Robert Pritchard to the special commission headed by Vice President Nelson Rockefeller, alleges that the CIA first plotted to poison Duvalier in 1966.

When this failed, according to the deposition, the CIA tried to bomb the presidential palace in 1968. A lone B-25 bomber allegedly made two runs over the palace, dropping bombs and leaflets. But the bombs exploded harmlessly on the street outside.

Dr. Pritchard is a prominent American concert pianist, who had become a confident of the Haitian dictator. But in 1966, Dr. Pritchard defied an order from Papa Doc and gave a forbidden public concert in Haiti.

This caused the pianist's fall from favor, which the CIA allegedly sought to exploit. As Dr. Pritchard has related it to the Rockefeller commission, the CIA first tried to recruit him to spy on Papa Doc and his palace advisers.

Subsequently, a CIA-paid agent posing as a photographer approached Dr. Pritchard about slipping a deadly poison into the dictator's food, the deposition alleges. The pianist relates that he saw the lethal poison immediately paralyze a small, mouse-like creature, which the agent carried in a cage.

Dr. Pritchard states that he not only refused to cooperate with the agent but reported the plot to a U.S. political officer in Haito, According to Dr. Pritchard's testimony, the officer responded: "Wouldn't anything be better than this situation?" The pianist said he told Papa Doc about the assassination plot and that the dictator was aware of the scheming against his life. Dr. Pritchard also tried again to notify the State Department of what the CIA was doing, according to the deposition.

Nevertheless, the CIA approached him again and tried unsuccessfully to bring pressure on him to work against Papa Doc. Dr. Pritchard alleges that in May, 1968, he learned about the bombing attack upon the presidential palace. He was told by Arthur Bonhomme, then the Haitian ambassador to Washington, that the atack had been carried out by the CIA.

Footnote: In early 1971, we described six CIA assassination attempts against Cuban dictator Fidel Castro. We reported names and details. The first attempt, interestingly, was a plot to slip poison pellets in Castor's food.

THIU'S DEBACLE: In an earlier report, we cited secret military cables, which placed much of the blame for the South Vietnamese military debacle upon President Nguyen Van Thiu.

He issued conflicting orders which confused his commandrs, according to one cable. He kept changing his mind, for example, whether to order a defense of Da Nang and Hue. In the end, these cities were lost without a battle.

A subsequent cable reports that the U.S. Army chief, Gen. Frederick Weyend, now on a fact-finding mission in South Vietnam, had appointments last week to see Thieu, The South Vietnamese president canceled the meetings literally at the last minute.

Apparently, Thieu didn't have the answers to Weyand's questions and didn't want to face him. The cables report that Weyand, meanwhile, was shocked over the South Vietnamese Army's pell-mell retreat. The North Vietnamese forces advanced southward so rapidly that our own intelligence analysts occasionally lost track of them.

The speculation is that the Communists staged forced night marchers to take advantage of the chaotic South Vietnamese retreat.

The intelligence reports warns that within days Hanoi's forces will have the capital city of Saigan under seige. American analysts have all but given up hope--because of the demoralization and disorganization of the South Vietnamese army--that Saigon can be successfully defended.

STRANGE ARREST: The story has been hushed up of a strnge arrest in Athens. On Feb. 28, the Greek military authorities arrested Dennis Bassen, an American citizen employed by the multi-million-dollar Bendix Field Engineering Corporation.

This is the same firm that has been recruiting military specialists, putting them in civilian clothes and sending them to Saudi Arabia as advisers.

According to the Greek version, Bassen "was taking photos of military installations." His superiors describe him as a senior field engineer with an "impeccable record." He has been in Greece for several months, they say, working on the installation of a microwave station.

A source in the Greek embassy told us only that the Bassen case is "very strange."

EXTRA ENGINES: Several airlines have been saving transportation costs by flying spare engines on scheduled commercial flights. The extra engine simply is attached under one wing of the plane. Passengers have been alarmed over the lopsided dead weight caused by the extra load. They have expessed concern about potential safety hazards.

The Federal Aviation Administration has assured our office, however, that this practice is routine procedure and completely safe.

Pamphlet describes mental illness

PUEBLO, Colo.,--There are no easy formulas for raising mentally healthy children and parents should not be misled into believing there are. In the process of reaching maturity there may be confusion, anxiety and growing pains for both children and their parents.

Since each child is unique, there is no system of child-rearing that will produce predictable results. But there are some basic factors that seem to play an important part in a child's psychological development. In a new booklet, the Department of Helath, Education and Welfare discusses these factors. A copy of "Your Child's Emotional Health" may be obtained for 25 cents from Consumer Information, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Among the topics discussed are the influences of heredity and environment. Today experts are just beginning tounderstand that heredity and environment are so deeply entwined that they can never be separated and both factors play extremely important roles in human growth.

Other topics include: What constitutes "normal" behavior in a child; the difference between an emotionally disturbed child and one who needs more firm disciplie; the major symptoms of mental illness in children; what couses over-agressive and anti-social behavior in a child; how a parent can handle agressive behavior; what kind of discipline is best; what leads to child abuse; and what is the effect of parents being away from home.

"Your Child's Emotional Health" is one of 250 selected federal consumer publications listed in the winter edition of the "Consumer Information Index" published by the Consumer Information Center of the General Services Administration. A free copy of the index may be had by writing to Consumer Information, Pueblo, Colo, 81009 or by contacting one of the Federal Information Centers located throughout the country.

Atheist knocks religious references

Dear Readers: Recently I said I was waiting for permission to print a good letter from an atheist and use the writer's name. Today, permission was granted. Here it is: The author, Madalyn Murray O'Hair, Founder of the Society of Separationists, Inc.

Dear Ann Landers: I am addressing you because I receive thousands of pieces of mail each year with clippings of your column enclosed, as you continue to refer persons with troubles to their minister, rabbi and priest.

The atheistic community of the United States comprises about 20 per cent of the population. This means you are offending a helluva lot of people week in and week out. Your columns are replete with religious references also, in other veins.

The Society of Separationists, Inc., which I founded, is dedicated to the complete and absolute separation of state and church, i.e., of religion and government. Atheists are good people, fine citizens, educated and mature adults. Please stop offending them by pretending they don't exist. Telling an atheist to go to his minister with a family problem is like telling a Jew to light a candle for the Virgin Mary. Consideration, understanding, and empathy extends to us also, along with everyone else. -- Madalyn Murray O'Hair.

Dear Madalyn Murray O'Hair: I have seen you on TV and am impressed by your sincerity and courage.

I, too, am a firm believer in the separation of religion and government, but after that we part company.

I'm sorry if you feel I am offending "a helluva lot of people week in and week out." The reason my columns are "replete with religious references" is because I happen to be a person who HAS religious beliefs and my column reflects my convictions.

When one has an audience of 60 million readers, seven days a week, 365days a year, it is impossible to tailor every reply to fit every segment of society. Surely you are not suggesting that I stop telling people to seek help from a minister, rabbi or priest when you yourself have stated that 80 per cent of the people in the United States do hold religious beliefs. (Actually, it's 77 per cent, according to a recent Gallup poll.) I frequently advise people to seek help from physicians, psychiatrists, lawyers, and marriage couselors, as well.

I'm sure many atheists are fine citizens, educated and mature, but I see no reason for those individuals to be offended by my references to God. The way I see it, if the advice doesn't fit they can ignore it..

Sincerly yours,
Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: You are a traitor to your sex. Instead of sticking up for us women who really need it, you always support the selfish, inconsiderate husbands who should get a swift kick in the barstool.

Why don't you be honest with your readers and tell it like it is ? Some of these jerks we're stuck with are just plain stinkers and they wouldn't come home for Elizabeth Taylor. Sign me -- Former Ann Fan In Racine

Dear Former; I agree that some men are stinkers -- but who picked them? Since you brought it up, beauty doesn't guarantee faithful homecoming. Elizabeth Taylor is now in the process of considering Number Six.

Are drugs O.K. if you learn how to control them ? Can they be of help? The answers are in Ann Landers's new booklet, "Straight Dope on Drugs." For each booklet ordered, send a dollar bill, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (20 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 1400 Elgin, Illinois 60120.

Chicken rates high

It is not always easy to provide nutritionally- balanced meals without unbalancing the food budget.

That is why more and more homemakers concerned with maintaining the good health of their families include chicken frequently in their meal planning. Few meats equal the food value of chicken.

Chicken contains the same high quality, complete protein found in red meats. It also contributes iron, thiamin, riboflavin, niacin, calcium and phosphorous to the diet.

Chicken liver is especially rich in iron and Vitamin A, providing 109.7 per cent of the recommended daily allowance of the latter.

Equally important is what chicken does not add to the diet. Chicken is low in fat content and the fat it does contain is two-thirds unsaturated. It contains no carbohydrates.

Another nutritional plus for chicken is its low calorie content. Chicken has fewer calories than most meats. According to the National Broiler Council, a three and one-half ounce serving of broiled chicken (without skin and bone) contains approximately 136 calories.

However, it is chicken's protein value that has made it a mainstay of American meals. A three and one-half ounce serving of chicken (without skin and bone) contains 31.2 grams of protein or 52 per cent of the average daily adult requirements.

The light, delicate taste of chicken appeals to every age. And chicken is so vversatile, it can be served often. A slight change in seasoning results in a completely new taste, allowing the imaginative cook almost limitless possibilities for preparing this nutrition - packed food.

Here are two ways to include nutritious chicken in your menu-planning:

ROBUST COUNTRY CHICKEN

1 broiler - fryer chicken, cut in serving p arts
1/4 cup flour
1 1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 tps. pepper
1/4 cup oil
1/2 cup chicken bouillon
2 tbsp. chopped parsley (optional)
1 12-ounce can yellow corn, drained
1 16-ounce can butter beans
1 tbsp. chopped pimento
2 8-ounce cans tomato sauce with mushrooms
1 tsp. seasoning salt

Lightly coat chicken with combination of flour, salt and p epper. Lightly brown chicken on all sides in oil in skillet. Pour off excess fat. Add bouillon, cover and simmer 40 minutes. Add parsley, corn, butter beans, pimento, tomato sauce and seasoning salt. Simmer 10 minutes or until chicken is tender.

Makes four servings.

Fresh produce replaces costly sugar in stores

WASHINGTON, D.C.–High sugar prices are not all that bad in the opinion of most of the nation's leading nutritionists. As sugar prices are still high, consumers are turning to more natural sources of sugar to replace the refined sugar they had been using.

Noting the current interest in sugar substitutes, Jane Uetz, home economist with the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association, says there is no better source of natural sugar than fresh fruits.

"Sweetening" this diet shift even more is the fact that these sugars are not empty calories. Rather, the natural sugars in fresh fruits are augmented by vitamins and minerals, other valuable nutrients and fiber that are not in table sugar, Miss Uetz, points out.

Several common fruits contain relatively large amounts of various sugars. Fresh fruits currently available that contains five grams or more of various natural sugars per 100 grams edible portion include: Bananas, grapes, apples, pineapples, pears, strawberries, oranges and other citrus fruit except for the highly acidic ones. Sweet potatoes and parsnips are also high in sugars, Miss Uetz said.

As sugar is expensive due to decreased production and supplies, several food economists and consumer affairs directors in food chains have been urging customers to curtail their purchases of sugar. They are advising consumers to substitute fresh produce for sweetened foods and to provide meals that are better nutritionally and also lower in cost.

Among alternatives suggested have been fresh fruit instead of cake, fruit-flavored yogurt instead of ice cream and fresh orange juice in place of sweetened soft drirks.

Here are some simple dessert ideas: ORANGE GLAZED BANANAS:

Peel four firm bananas and place in a baking dish. Mix two tablespoons fresh orange juice, two tablespoons honey, one tablespoon melted butter or margarine and one-half teaspoon grated orange rind; pour over banans . Bake in 450-degree oven for 10 minutes. Serve hot or cold.

FRESH FRUIT PARFAITS:

Add one and one-half cups cut-up fresh fruit such as pineapple, orange sections or grapes to one package prepared vanilla pudding mix. Fold in one teaspoon grated lemon rind. Whip one-half cup heavy cream and fold in. Spoon into dessert dishes and chill.

While sugars are natural products, in the form of table sugar (sucrose) it is purified and concentrated to an unusual degree. And this is the problem as far as nutritionists are concerned. We get too large a percentage of our carbohydrates from this one source. And as much as 20 per cent of our average caloric intake is from sugar.

This consumption pattern is a relatively recent development. It is only within the late 40 years that per capita consumption of sugar in the United States hit about 120 pounds a year, of which more than 100 pounds is sucrose from white table sugar.

"More and more, consumers are looking to fresh fruits to substitute for the sugar they formerly used," Miss Uetz reports. "For the average American, expecially our youngsters, this can only be considered a dietetic blessing if we change permanently from empty calories to the more natural sources of sugars in fresh fruits."

4 baseball openers set

The weatherman must be a baseball fan . . . at least in Cincinnati.

After more than a week of unseasonably cold weather, the temperature rose into the 50s Sunday and a further warming trend is expected to push the thermometer into the 60s today for the opener of the major league baseball season between the Reds and the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Three more games are scheduled under the lights as the National League begins its 100th campaign and the American League its 75th.

In the NL, the Montreal Expos will be in St. . Louis to face the Cardinals while the Atlanta Braves invade Houston to play the Astros. The lone AL contest finds the Kansas City Royals in Anaheim against the California Angels.

The Royals and Angels meet again Tuesday night while eight other AL clubs get under way — the New York Yankees against the Indians in Cleveland, the Milwaukee Brewers against the RedSox in Boston, the Minnesota Twins against the Texas Rangers in Arlington and the Chicago White Sox in Oakland against the world champioin, Catfish Hunter-less A's.

In NL games Tuesday, the Philadelphia Phillies face the Mets in New York, the San Francisco Giants meet the Padres in San Diego and the Braves and Astros go at it again in Houston.

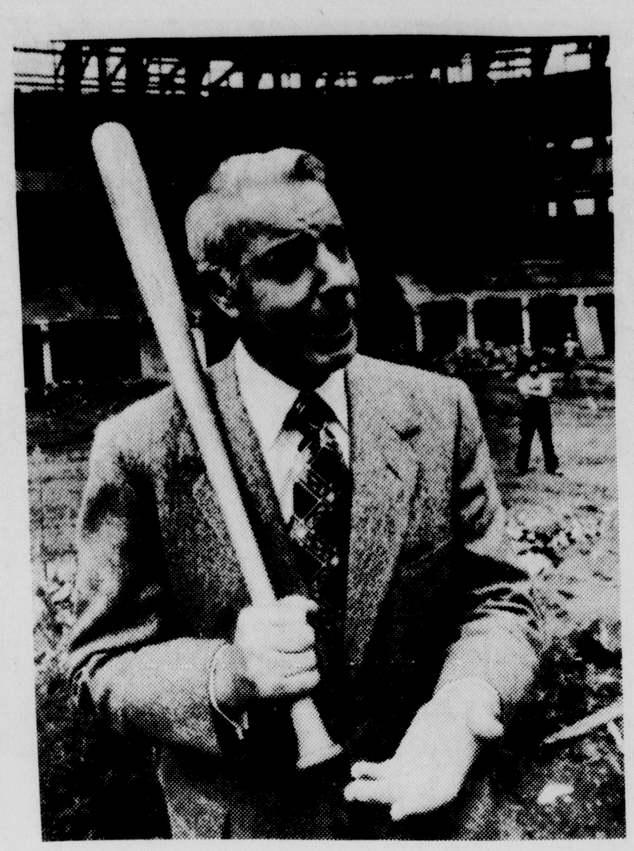

The recent storm that tormented the Midwest caused two of Tuesday's scheduled openers to be called off. The Chicago Cubs will host the Pittsburgh Piraetss in their NL opener on Wednesday instead while the AL's Baltimore Orioles will oppose the Tigers in Detroit on Thursday in a regularly scheduled game. Tuesday's game will be made up later in the season.

The Dodgers finished four games ahead of the Reds in the NL West last year and the two teams are expected to pick up where they left off. Don Sutton, 19-9 in 1974, will pitch for the Dodgers against Cincainnati's Don Gullett, 17-10, before a sellout crowd of 52,000 in Riverfront Stadium, including Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and Sen. Robert Taft, R-Ohio, who will throw out the first ball.

After viewing the Dodgers and Reds, Kuhn will rush to St. Louis to watch veteran pitcher Bob Gibson begin his final season. Gibson, the winningest active pitcher with 248 victories but trying to bounce back from a sore knee that dropped his record to 11-13 last season, will be opposed by Montreal left-hander Dave McN ally, 16-10 with the Baltimore Orioles, who traded him during the off-season.

In Houston, the Braves, minus Hank Aaron for the first time in 22 years, will use knuckleballer Phil Niekro against the Astros' Larry Dierker.

Howeer, the best may come when California's Nolan Ryan hooks up with Kansas City's Steve Busby. Ryan closed out 1974 with his third career no-hitter while Busby has pitched a no-hitter in each of his first two seasons.

Old scenes vanishing

It's sad to see the old neighborhood change--especially when you're Joe DiMaggio, and the old haunt was Yankee Stadium, now under renovation--where you spent the happiest years of your life.

Gibson to take on youthful Expos

ST. LOUIS (AP) "I feel good, but it doesn't count until the bell goes off," baseball's Bob Gibson said. "All in all, though, I think I'm ready."

The 39-year-old Gibson, who ranks as the game's winningest active pitcher, gets a chance to prove it tonight when the St. Louis Cardinals face the Montreal Expos in a National League opener.

"I still have pain, but that's something you learn to live with," remarked Gibson, who was hobbled by previous knee surgery and finished 11-13 in 1974.

"But the knee seems sounder than a year ago," he added. "I haven't had the same stiffness that I had to contend with a year ago, so maybe it'll be okay."

Gibson, whose 248 lifetime triumphs head the major leagues, will be making his 10th straight opening-date appearance against a young and faster Expos lineup.

"He's a throwback to the old-style ball player," Mauch said of the 6-foot-2 Carter, who is also the Expos' backup catcher.

Bulldogs rout Zizzers

It was to be the year's biggest test for the young Sikeston Bulldogs against a tried and tough team — the West Plains Zizzers. But, the cross-state rivals who have been to the state quarterfinals eight years in a row, were gracious guests Saturday afternoon.

Fielding a much more experienced lineup than Sikeston, West Plains promptly handed coach N. P. McDaniel's troops eight unearned runs, and the youthful Bulldogs used them to run away with a 10-3 triumph and their third win in as many games.

"It's Cape (Central) and Notre Dame this year," an area expert was heard to proclaim a couple weeks ago. No mention was made of Sikeston and rightfully so. The Bulldogs graduated seven starters — and six of them were starting for the third year — last season when the veteran team copped the district title

Despite the lack of experience (just four lettermen are around) and the fact that the entire team is stocked from last season's junior varsity ranks, the Bulldogs are making noises like they would like to at least be a factor in deciding the eventual champions this season as well.

Showing an encouraging ability to comefrom behind, or, on the other hand, a distressing penchant for giving away first inning runs, the Bulldogs spotted West Plains three runs in the first three innings while still looking for their first hit. With two out in the third, Charlie Miller, who is flirting with the .600 mark in batting, ripped a single to left center. Following a walk, David Shell's high fly bounced off the West Plains center fielder for a two-base, two-run error.

Kevin "Crash" Lasters led off the fourth with a rally-startingbase-hit- to left and, before the dust and wild West Plains throws had cleared the field, Sikeston and pitching ace Kenny Stokes had a 5-3 lead. Finally warming up (despite the 50-degree temperature, it felt 15 degrees cooler), Stokes took control of the game the rest of the way, finishing with 11 strikeouts.

Lasters, although batting eighth, was the hitting star for the Bulldogs with two hits and an RBI. Five runs in the bottom of the sixth iced the victory for the hard-firing Stokes. Sikeston also won the Jayvee game, 11-1.

The Bulldogs encounter another tough task this week when they oppose the aforementioned Cape Central Tigers, then follow that up with a Wednesday encounter against Kelly. Both arte road games.

Weiskopf tops happy pack at Greensboro

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)--"I've worked hard," Tom Weiskopf said. "I'm, back."

But Weiskopf, a winner again after 18 months of frustration, was not the only one to turn a happy face toward Augusta, Ga., and the upcoming Masters, that annual spring rite that occupies a unique position in the game of golf.

While Weiskopf's relatively easy, front-running, three-stroke triumph Sunday made him the happiest man in the Greater Greensboro Open, there was a large number of pro golf's greats who found their own ray of a sunshine in the wind and cold that plagued this old event.

"I think I accomplished what I wanted to," said Johnny Miller, a three-time winner this season who made a surprise entry here to hone his game for the Masters.

"I played a good, solid tournament," he said. "My game is good. My wswing is good. My putting is coming along. It isn't great yet, but it's good." He tied for sixth.

"I'm really quite pleased," said Gary Player, the gritty little South African who holds the British Open crown and will defend in Augusta. A final round 69 brought a big smile to his face.

"That's the best round I've played in several years," said Arnold Palmer. "It's really very encouraging." After shooting himself out of contention in the early going, Palmer closed with a five-under par 66 in the final round but, like Player, was far, far back.

"Fantastic," said Lee Elder, who will be the first black to play in the Masters. "Maybe I can surprise some people." He scored a rare double eagle-holing a 181-yard five iron second shot on the par five 14th hole.

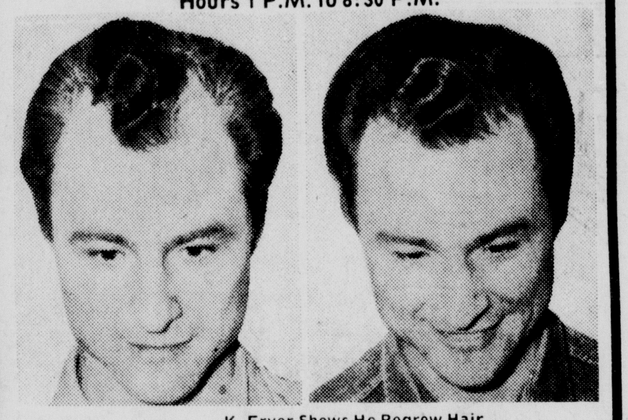

Derby field taking shape

Pending the Wood Memorial and the Bluegrass Stakes, the field for the 101st running of the Kentucky Derby now shapes up as 12 to 14 horses, headed by Florida Derby winner Prince Thou Art.

Also likely to be at the post May 3 at Churchill Downs in Louisville are Santa Anita Derby winner Avatar; Laramie Trail and Singh, winners of the Gotham Stakes divisions; Promised City, the Arkansas Derby victory, and more than half a dozen others.

These Derby nominees might join the likes of W. S. Farish III's Bold Gun and others in the starting gate for the 1¼-mile Kentucky Derby

CAN'T HELP

Male pattern baldness is the cause of a great majority of cases of baldness and excessive hair loss, for which no method is effective. Ebb Hair Specialists cannot help those who are slick bald after years of gradual hair loss.

But, if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss?

Many conditions can cause hair loss. No matter which one is causing your hair loss, if you wait until you are slick Bald and your hair roots are dead you are beyond help. So, if you still have hair on top of your head, and would like to stop hair loss and grow more hair ... now is the time to do something about it before it's too late.

FREE CONSULTATION

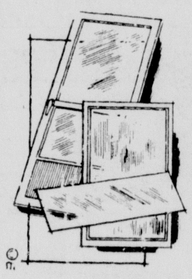

Just take a few minutes of your time on Monday, Apr. 7, and go to the Holiday Inn I-55 & US 60, Sikeston, Mo. between 1 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. and ask the Desk Clerk for J. H. Norton room number.

CAN'T HELP

Male pattern baldness is the cause of a great majority of cases of baldness and excessive hair loss, for which no method is effective. Ebb Hair Specialists cannot help those who are slick bald after years of gradual hair loss.

But, if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss?

Many conditions can cause hair loss. No matter which one is causing your hair loss, if you wait until you are slick Bald and your hair roots are dead you are beyond help. So, if you still have hair on top of your head, and would like to stop hair loss and grow more hair ... now is the time to do something about it before it's too late.

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday, April 7, the 97th day of 1975. There are 268 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

In 1927, an audience at the Bell Telephone Laboratories in New York watched the first successful long-distance demonstration of television. The image was that of Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover in Washington.

On this date —

In 1770, the English poet, William Wordsworth, was born.

In 1778, the oldest settlement in Ohio, Marietta, was founded.

Congress organized the Territory of Mississippi.

In 1945, U.S. carrier planes sank Japan's largest battleship, the "Yamato."

Also in 1945, U.S. Army officers discovered a horde of Nazi gold and art treasures hidden in a salt mine near Merkers, Germany.

In 1947, the auto pioneer, Henry Ford, died at the age of 83.

In 1967, Israel and Syria fought their biggest air battle in 19 years.

Ten years ago: President Lyndon Johnson said the United States was ready to begin, without prior conditions, diplomatic discussions to end the war in South Vietnam.

Five years ago: Joseph Stalin's daughter, Svetlana Alliluyeva, and an American artist, William Peters, were married in Phoenix, Arizona.

One year ago: President Richard Nixon returned to Washington after attending the funeral of French President Georges Pompidou in Paris and conferring with European leaders.

Today's birthday: Actor James Garner is 47 years old.

Thought for today: It takes all sorts of people to make a world — Douglas Jerrold, English playwright and humorist, 1803-1857.

David Gates Setting Solo Goals

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Bread got stale and crumbled and David Gates, who wrote about half the songs for the group, now has his second album out on his own.

The first LP was "David Gates' First" and the new one, climbing on the charts in March, is "Never Let Her Go." The title song went to No. 26 on the singles chart on March 15. Later there probably will be another single from the album.

Gates smiles, looking a good deal younger than 34, and says that he has quit smoking. "Your biggest problem when you're touring is keeping your voice in shape. It's really your whole show. I used to smoke and I couldn't hold notes so well. Now I've got my wind up better.

"You've got to want to quit smoking. I decided to do it.

"Making up my mind and going after something, particularly at this time in my life, I really enjoy. I like to set up little goals.

"Right now I'm working on my backhand. I've got to get that just right."

Musically, Gates says, "When I left Oklahoma for Los Angeles, I wanted to be a success. There was some risk involved in leaving college; I was an English major. Music was a weekend thing but the more I played the more I wanted to do that to make a living instead of as a hobby.

"When Bread had its first single, 'Make It With You,' go to No. 1, I told our manager I would like to have 10 straight hit singles. We had 11.

"I've had three singles on my own and the first two got in the 40s. That's a hit in somebody's books. Not mine. I would like to maybe get a gold album by myself. It's something to shoot for.

DAVID GATES

"But when I left the group I said at that point my only goal really was to make the best possible records I could. It was personal rather than wanting to make so many dollars or have so many gold records.

"I've had commercial success and without ignoring that, I would like to see how good I really can make it. I'm really starting to push myself.

"Sometimes the best is not always the commercial best. A perfect example is a Bread situation. 'Make It With You' and 'Baby I'm A-Want you' each sold a million. A song I thought was hands down the best was 'If.' I thought so when I wrote it and when we recorded it. I thought it would sell two million and it did about three-quarters of a million. I think it's really better musically and is going to last. Sometimes it takes a good song a while to see the light of day."

Bread ended, after about four years together, Gates says, because the group had stopped growing musically. "I spoke to all the guys about it. They were all of the same mind. It wasn't that one wants to leave and three want to stay and hire another person. It was over and that's it. The group had a great deal of respect. It was like retiring undefeated.

"We were probably on the best of terms personally we'd been in a long time when we did break it up. Everybody had gotten mellow about it."

Gates writes now much as he did when writing for Bread, he says. The music comes easier than the lyrics, usually. He stayed on with Elektra Records and produces his own albums with Larry Knetchtel from Bread as associate producer and Bruce Morgan as engineer.

"From a musician's standpoint it is more fun to play rock 'n' roll than ballads," Gates says. "It is a faster pace and physically a better musical exercise. It's the difference between walking and running. You need to have some of each.

"Technically I can sing ballads better. I don't have a real good rock voice. Everybody has his favorites. I like Paul McCartney; he is good at both. He has energy and drive more than belting.

"I would like to be able to do that and just can't. I end up, if there's a cooking band on it, singing on top of that, knowing there is probably somebody who could do it better. What else can you do? I'm getting a little better at it. I used to be pretty timid. Most people are better at one than the other. McCartney is pretty rare."

When he's recording, Gates says, his engineer often will try to coax an extra performance from him, telling him they'll keep what they think is the best one and try again.

"Sometimes you'll get into the right frame of mind to sing and something will go wrong technically — something's wrong with the headphones or a truck goes by the studio or they forget to record that one.

"If you don't get that one, it is downhill. Then an hour and a half later it is back up again. It is nice to get it the first time.

"I had a vocal erased once, with Bread. I kept trying and I thought I'd never get it that good again. I got it better."

Gates says that Elektra gives him his head, which he appreciates. "I bring a record in, in a reasonable period of time and don't spend outlandish amounts of money. They know I can take a project from beginning to end. I'd rather they trust me or throw me out — don't stand and watch over my shoulder. I think I've proven myself to the company."

Gates lives with his wife and sons, 14 and 9, and daughters, 13 and 6, in the San Fernando Valley. He recently bought a ranch in Washington, which he doesn't know how to operate himself but really likes. "I went to a bull sale up there in January. Sometimes you wouldn't know I was in the record business."

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (AP) — Garden State Park racing steward Carl Hanford says he visits Kelso on the farm whenever he gets a chance. Hanford trained Kelso during the gelding's five straight years as horse of the year.

Kelso has stood at Mrs. Richard Dupont's Woodstock Farm in Chesapeake City, Md., since his retirement from racing in 1966. He ran 63 times during eight years of competition. He won 31 stakes races including five Jockey Club Gold Cups.

One-Room Apartment Uses Platform Decor

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

It was the kind of decorating job that interior designer William Gaylord of San Francisco may never do again — a multi-living room for $1,500, "the amount I usually spend on a sofa," he commented, but it earned him first award in the residential category in the 17th annual S.M. Hexter Awards Program for the Interiors of the Year.

"The couple wanted the apartment only for three years until the man comes into his inheritance, so there are no investment pieces — dining or bedroom furniture — such as young people are likely to buy in the early days of marriage. But it isn't makeshift or make-do either. It is entirely livable," he explained, adding "It was the kind of challenge I couldn't turn down."

In achieving the decorating goal in the New York apartment, Gaylord went the way of the platform — in fact, two platform levels. Each has its own boundary for living, sleeping and "host" objects. A mattress is on the basic platform in "a cove-like" corner. Cushions for seats and backrests for five people are on a U-shape area of the same platform. Dividing the sleeping and seating area is a platform that encloses a stereo and makes a level for plants and party accessories and the like, even as it becomes a ledge that also runs along the perimeter of the wall. It is level with seat cushions and about a foot above the mattress in the lounging area. Part of the basic platform on either side the U-shape seating area can serve as a table. A cube within that seating area is topped with Plexiglas and also serves as a table.

The quilted wheat-color covered mattress provides instant sleep, Gaylord pointed out, unlike a sleep sofa which would have to be made up each night.

"All the platforms are covered in diving board matting (sisal); the seat cushions are white, zip-off, easy-clean cotton, and the platforms of plywood were built by the occupant do-it-yourselfer, a medical student," he explained.

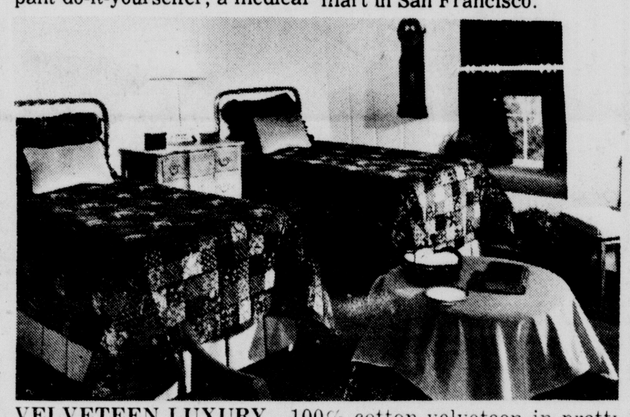

At the windows Gaylord used furring strips to divide the large window area and provide the illusion of narrow windows at which he used natural-color split-bamboo blinds. He also "lowered the ceiling" at the seating area "to create down lights," and provided an idea for quick-change throw pillows — by covering them with multicolor scarves that are knotted at each end. Other decorative pillows are on the mattress over a handsome throw.

"It is really an all-natural room. No color dominates," explained Gaylord, a 29-year-old Texan, who attended North Texas University and has had little formal training in design. A member of the American Society of Interior Designers, he is responsible for the interiors of the Iranian Embassy in Washington and of the Icehouse, the home furnishings mart in San Francisco.

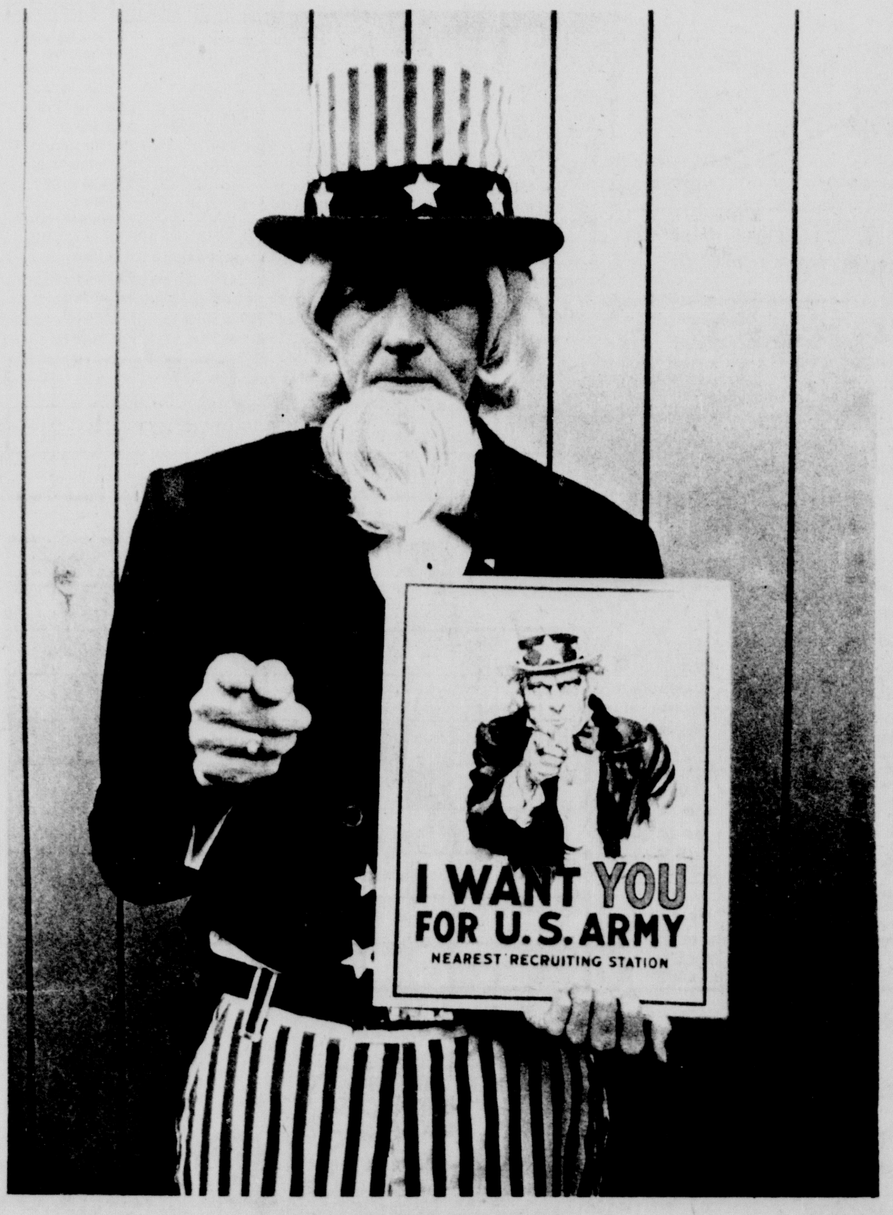

In winning the event, which was "conceived to recognize and commend the interior design profession for its contribution to today's total environment," the California designer was awarded a two-week trip for two to Europe.

MULTILEVEL PLATFORM ROOM designed by William Gaylord for a young New York couple for $1,500 was first place winner in the 17th annual S.M. Hexter Awards Program.

David Gates Setting Solo Goals

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Bread got stale and crumbled and David Gates, who wrote about half the songs for the group, now has his second album out on his own.

The first LP was "David Gates' First" and the new one, climbing on the charts in March, is "Never Let Her Go." The title song went to No. 26 on the singles chart on March 15. Later there probably will be another single from the album.

Gates smiles, looking a good deal younger than 34, and says that he has quit smoking. "Your biggest problem when you're touring is keeping your voice in shape. It's really your whole show. I used to smoke and I couldn't hold notes so well. Now I've got my wind up better.

"You've got to want to quit smoking. I decided to do it.

"Making up my mind and going after something, particularly at this time in my life, I really enjoy. I like to set up little goals.

"Right now I'm working on my backhand. I've got to get that just right."

Musically, Gates says, "When I left Oklahoma for Los Angeles, I wanted to be a success. There was some risk involved in leaving college; I was an English major. Music was a weekend thing but the more I played the more I wanted to do that to make a living instead of as a hobby.

"When Bread had its first single, 'Make It With You,' go to No. 1, I told our manager I would like to have 10 straight hit singles. We had 11.

"I've had three singles on my own and the first two got in the 40s. That's a hit in somebody's books. Not mine. I would like to maybe get a gold album by myself. It's something to shoot for.

DAVID GATES

"But when I left the group I said at that point my only goal really was to make the best possible records I could. It was personal rather than wanting to make so many dollars or have so many gold records.

"I've had commercial success and without ignoring that, I would like to see how good I really can make it. I'm really starting to push myself.

"Sometimes the best is not always the commercial best. A perfect example is a Bread situation. 'Make It With You' and 'Baby I'm A-Want you' each sold a million. A song I thought was hands down the best was 'If.' I thought so when I wrote it and when we recorded it. I thought it would sell two million and it did about three-quarters of a million. I think it's really better musically and is going to last. Sometimes it takes a good song a while to see the light of day."

Bread ended, after about four years together, Gates says, because the group had stopped growing musically. "I spoke to all the guys about it. They were all of the same mind. It wasn't that one wants to leave and three want to stay and hire another person. It was over and that's it. The group had a great deal of respect. It was like retiring undefeated.

"We were probably on the best of terms personally we'd been in a long time when we did break it up. Everybody had gotten mellow about it."

Gates writes now much as he did when writing for Bread, he says. The music comes easier than the lyrics, usually. He stayed on with Elektra Records and produces his own albums with Larry Knetchtel from Bread as associate producer and Bruce Morgan as engineer.

"From a musician's standpoint it is more fun to play rock 'n' roll than ballads," Gates says. "It is a faster pace and physically a better musical exercise. It's the difference between walking and running. You need to have some of each.

"Technically I can sing ballads better. I don't have a real good rock voice. Everybody has his favorites. I like Paul McCartney; he is good at both. He has energy and drive more than belting.

"I would like to be able to do that and just can't. I end up, if there's a cooking band on it, singing on top of that, knowing there is probably somebody who could do it better. What else can you do? I'm getting a little better at it. I used to be pretty timid. Most people are better at one than the other. McCartney is pretty rare."

When he's recording, Gates says, his engineer often will try to coax an extra performance from him, telling him they'll keep what they think is the best one and try again.

"Sometimes you'll get into the right frame of mind to sing and something will go wrong technically — something's wrong with the headphones or a truck goes by the studio or they forget to record that one.

"If you don't get that one, it is downhill. Then an hour and a half later it is back up again. It is nice to get it the first time.

"I had a vocal erased once, with Bread. I kept trying and I thought I'd never get it that good again. I got it better."

Gates says that Elektra gives him his head, which he appreciates. "I bring a record in, in a reasonable period of time and don't spend outlandish amounts of money. They know I can take a project from beginning to end. I'd rather they trust me or throw me out — don't stand and watch over my shoulder. I think I've proven myself to the company."

Gates lives with his wife and sons, 14 and 9, and daughters, 13 and 6, in the San Fernando Valley. He recently bought a ranch in Washington, which he doesn't know how to operate himself but really likes. "I went to a bull sale up there in January. Sometimes you wouldn't know I was in the record business."

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (AP) — Garden State Park racing steward Carl Hanford says he visits Kelso on the farm whenever he gets a chance. Hanford trained Kelso during the gelding's five straight years as horse of the year.

Kelso has stood at Mrs. Richard Dupont's Woodstock Farm in Chesapeake City, Md., since his retirement from racing in 1966. He ran 63 times during eight years of competition. He won 31 stakes races including five Jockey Club Gold Cups.

One-Room Apartment Uses Platform Decor

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

It was the kind of decorating job that interior designer William Gaylord of San Francisco may never do again — a multi-living room for $1,500, "the amount I usually spend on a sofa," he commented, but it earned him first award in the residential category in the 17th annual S.M. Hexter Awards Program for the Interiors of the Year.

"The couple wanted the apartment only for three years until the man comes into his inheritance, so there are no investment pieces — dining or bedroom furniture — such as young people are likely to buy in the early days of marriage. But it isn't makeshift or make-do either. It is entirely livable," he explained, adding "It was the kind of challenge I couldn't turn down."

In achieving the decorating goal in the New York apartment, Gaylord went the way of the platform — in fact, two platform levels. Each has its own boundary for living, sleeping and "host" objects. A mattress is on the basic platform in "a cove-like" corner. Cushions for seats and backrests for five people are on a U-shape area of the same platform. Dividing the sleeping and seating area is a platform that encloses a stereo and makes a level for plants and party accessories and the like, even as it becomes a ledge that also runs along the perimeter of the wall. It is level with seat cushions and about a foot above the mattress in the lounging area. Part of the basic platform on either side the U-shape seating area can serve as a table. A cube within that seating area is topped with Plexiglas and also serves as a table.

The quilted wheat-color covered mattress provides instant sleep, Gaylord pointed out, unlike a sleep sofa which would have to be made up each night.

"All the platforms are covered in diving board matting (sisal); the seat cushions are white, zip-off, easy-clean cotton, and the platforms of plywood were built by the occupant do-it-yourselfer, a medical student," he explained.

At the windows Gaylord used furring strips to divide the large window area and provide the illusion of narrow windows at which he used natural-color split-bamboo blinds. He also "lowered the ceiling" at the seating area "to create down lights," and provided an idea for quick-change throw pillows — by covering them with multicolor scarves that are knotted at each end. Other decorative pillows are on the mattress over a handsome throw.

"It is really an all-natural room. No color dominates," explained Gaylord, a 29-year-old Texan, who attended North Texas University and has had little formal training in design. A member of the American Society of Interior Designers, he is responsible for the interiors of the Iranian Embassy in Washington and of the Icehouse, the home furnishings mart in San Francisco.

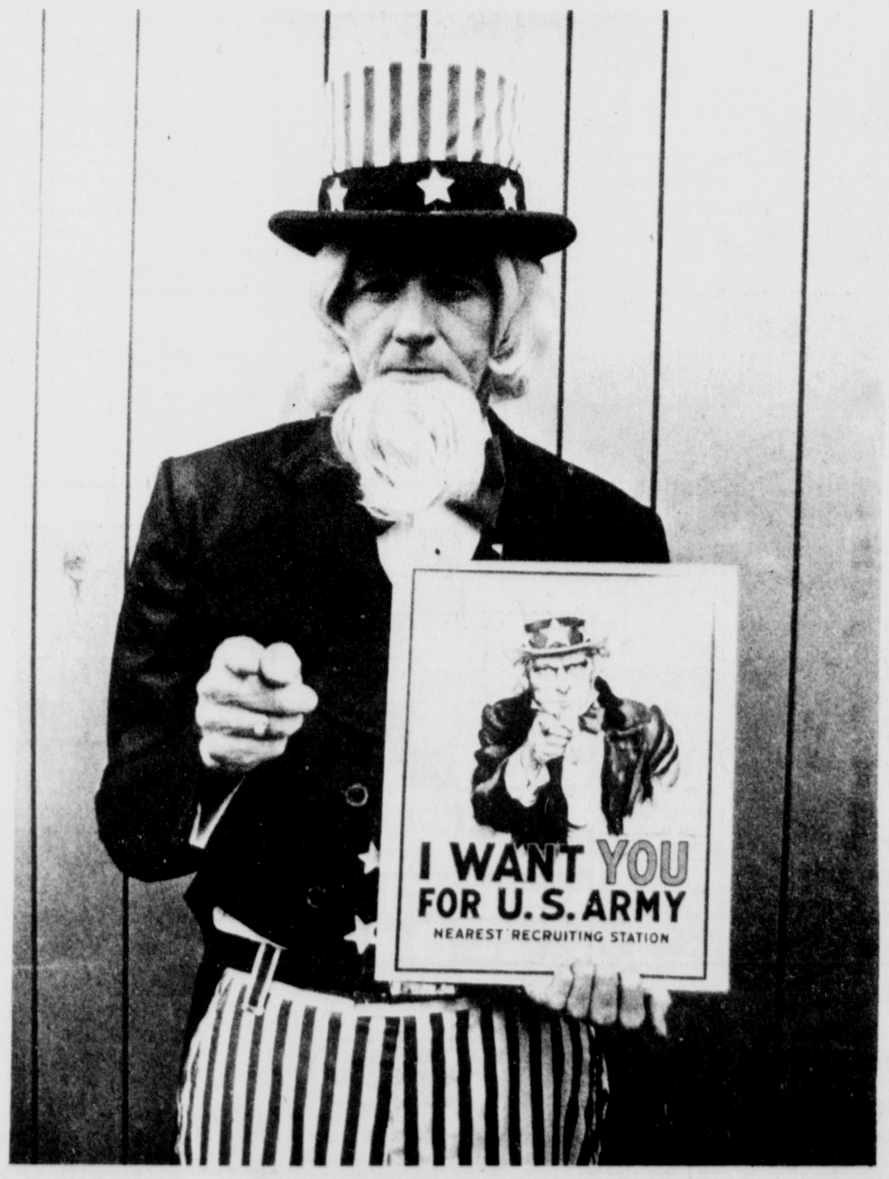

In winning the event, which was "conceived to recognize and commend the interior design profession for its contribution to today's total environment," the California designer was awarded a two-week trip for two to Europe.

MULTILEVEL PLATFORM ROOM designed by William Gaylord for a young New York couple for $1,500 was first place winner in the 17th annual S.M. Hexter Awards Program.

Firemen called to 3 fires

Firemen were called to three fires and asked to stand by a broken gas meter over the weekend. Only minor damage was caused in the fires, according to the department.

At 6:50 p.m. Saturday firemen were called to the rear of Red's Tavern, 109 W. Malone Ave., when a car struck and broke a gas meter there.

The car was owned by Carl Western of Scott City, who said, his brakes failed and his car struck the meter in the rear of the tavern.

No fire resulted and firemen stood by until the meter could be repaired.

At 7:30 a.m. Sunday. firemen were called to the American Legion Hall, 333 S. Kingshighway, when a motor on a furnace burned, pouring smoke into the building. Damage was confined to the furnace.

At 7:30 p.m. Sunday firemen were called to Jack Frost Discount, 801 South Main St., when paper and boxes in a bin caught fire at the outside rear of the building.

Firemen said there was minor damage done to the storage bin. Cause of the fire is unknown, firemen said.

At 8:15 p.m. Sunday firemen were called to the Christine Harrison home, 812 Gulf St., when a carelessly discarded cigarette set fire to a chair.

Firemen said the fire was confined to the chair.

Fashion show set tonight

The annual American Cancer Society fashion show is scheduled at 7:30 tonight in the Security Federal Savings and Loan Association community room.

He graduated from Sikeston HIgh School in 1969.

Survivors include one son, Raymond J. Butler of the home; his father and step-mother, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Butler Sr. of Roanoke, Tex.; his mother and step-father, Mr. and Mrs. Chuck Kindred of Sikeston; one brother, Claude Butler Jr. of Sikeston; one half-brother, Robert Ray Kindred of Sikeston; one half-sister, Angela Diane Kindred of Sikeston; maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Waldrep of Liberty, Miss.; and paternal gandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Butler of Fayette, Ala.

Services were conducted at 2:30 p.m. today at Fellowship Baptist Church in Sikeston with the Rev. Ralph Buckley, pastor, officiating.

Burial followed in Sikeston Garden of Memories Cemetery.

Acting as pallbearers were Phil Davis, Buddy Vaughn, Ronnie Jackson, Craig McCoy, Ervin Kemper and Mike Boardman.

Henry C. Traute, the go-getter who fathered matchbook advertising, also thought up what may be the world's most ignored safety suggestion: "Close Cover Before Striking."

Firemen called to 3 fires

Firemen were called to three fires and asked to stand by a broken gas meter over the weekend. Only minor damage was caused in the fires, according to the department.

At 6:50 p.m. Saturday firemen were called to the rear of Red's Tavern, 109 W. Malone Ave., when a car struck and broke a gas meter there.

The car was owned by Carl Western of Scott City, who said, his brakes failed and his car struck the meter in the rear of the tavern.

No fire resulted and firemen stood by until the meter could be repaired.

At 7:30 a.m. Sunday. firemen were called to the American Legion Hall, 333 S. Kingshighway, when a motor on a furnace burned, pouring smoke into the building. Damage was confined to the furnace.

At 7:30 p.m. Sunday firemen were called to Jack Frost Discount, 801 South Main St., when paper and boxes in a bin caught fire at the outside rear of the building.

Firemen said there was minor damage done to the storage bin. Cause of the fire is unknown, firemen said.

At 8:15 p.m. Sunday firemen were called to the Christine Harrison home, 812 Gulf St., when a carelessly discarded cigarette set fire to a chair.

Firemen said the fire was confined to the chair.

Fashion show set tonight

The annual American Cancer Society fashion show is scheduled at 7:30 tonight in the Security Federal Savings and Loan Association community room.

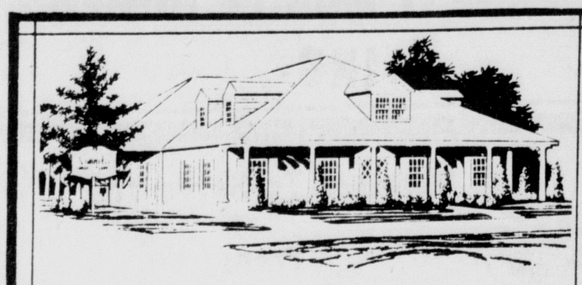

Mrs. Betty Hearnes of Charleston, wife of former Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, will be one of the narrators for the show. Describing fashions for men will be John Hartzog and Tim Chambers.

All proceeds from donations will go to the American Cancer Society. The show, which is being sponsored by the Scott County unit of the society, will feature about 50 local men and women modeling fashions.

Radio stolen from pickup

A citizen band radio valued at $199 was taken from a pickup truck parked at Ramada Inn between 8:45 p.m. and 10 p.m. Saturday, according to police.

The truck was owned by Donald Gee of Parma, Also taken was a microphone, valued at $35.50.
